Alcoa-RTI Integration Kicks-Off in Ohio

On April 14 and 15, more than 50 employees from Alcoa and RTI gathered in Niles, Ohio to begin planning the integration of the two companies. Eric Roegner, Chief Operating Officer for Alcoa Investment Castings, Forgings & Extrusions, began the session by encouraging everyone to focus on how the teams will work together to go beyond what each company could do alone. And while doing that, he emphasized that it is important that RTI not lose sight of what has made it the success it is today.

“It is very important in this transaction that RTI not lose that which makes it great,” said Roegner. “Integration is intended to help you become even more successful as part of the Alcoa family. We hope you’ll maintain your culture that has gotten you to this point. By joining with Alcoa, we both will find opportunities to grow and make ourselves better.”

Fifteen integration teams, from Quality and EHS to Titanium Mill Product Operations and Machining Operations, spent the two days laying the foundation for a successful integration. The visit also included a plant tour and reception.

Integration planning will continue as the companies pursue regulatory and shareholder approval.
